I've checked most of the posts on this site regarding RK5, and most of them are useless to me. I've tried renaming my original 7z file to keep gpg from automatically opening it, I tried with no luck, and I even tried running it through 7z.exe and double-clicking the 7z file.... Im trying to install Chiikat, but it keeps saying "the version of gpg you are running is vulnerable to a remote code execution attack. Please update your gpg installation". Chiikat is a pretty popular C# based crypto framework that I want to use to... I have a VM in which I downloaded a version of Ubuntu, and then installed a tool called "VirtualBox" I was trying to install a "VirtualBox Extension Pack" to get virtual box to work better with my OS (Ubuntu) However, my mom wants me to reinstall... I need to be able to sign or encrypt documents or files with my private key without anyone else knowing. I have used WinZip (under Linux) to sign and encrypt a bunch of things that have been passed around with me, but I'd like to have a more... i got some.psd files, and i need to edit them, but i can't remember the original password of the original photo. i looked at them with a lightbox and the password was just there. how can i hack this? I want to edit this video with adobe after effects. Because the resulting video files are too large for uploading directly to youtube, I want to use a compress tool to compress the video. There is 3 different video codecs that can be used. The... I am looking for a public/private keypair, used for sending e-mails. And I'm looking for a way to sign my e-mails with that keypair. I've got a gmail account (not a yahoo account) and I'm looking for a way to encrypt the content of my e-mails... I have a GPG Public Key attached to my email account and I'm trying to use it to sign code with. I put it into VSCode and it lets me sign code just fine, but when I try to commit it says there's an error with the gpg key and that I need to re-add the...
